WELCOME TO FENWAY PARK

Jean R. Yawkey

Haywood C. Sullivan

Edward G. LeRoux, Jr.

We hope you have an enjoyable visit to Fenway Park. Since 1912 it has been one of baseball's great landmarks and has developed a rich tradition.

Our refurbishing projects are continuing. Hopefully you will not be inconvenienced while we strive to add further improvements to our ballpark.

Among current improvements are expanded facilities for wheelchair fans and new lighting for the playing field. Concession stands and rest rooms have also undergone overhauling.

Although there have been cosmetic changes at Fenway Park, the playing field is virtually the same today as it was over 40 years ago. The famous "Green Monster" wall, the intriguing angles and corners around the outfield and the closeness of the crowd to the action are reasons why it is such a captivating place to watch baseball.

The Boston entry in the American League's inception in 1901 was known as the Pilgrims and played its games at the Huntington Avenue grounds where Northeastern U. now stands. In 1907 the Red Sox nickname was adopted and in 1912 Fenway Park opened for the first time.

The late Tom Yawkey put Fenway through a reconstruction phase during his first year of ownership in 1934 and then put the bullpens in right field after the 1939 season. Prior to the 1976 season a new left field wall was built, the centerfield message board was installed and padding was added to the outfield walls as a safety measure for outfielders.

For 83 years Boston has been one of the cornerstone franchises of the American League. Many great players have performed here and some of baseball's most dramatic moments were seen here.

During the last 16 years over 28 million fans have attended games in Fenway Park. Over that span the Red Sox have been the only major league team to have a winning record every single season.

The 1982 edition, capably managed by Ralph Houk, was in either first or second place from April 23 through September 3 and remained in the Eastern Division race until the last week of September.

The diagram on page 16A shows the location of all Fenway Park facilities and the maps on page 50 show the various methods and routes leading here. We urge you to use the public transportation facilities as often as possible to come to the ballpark.

Above all, the Red Sox management thanks Red Sox fans throughout New England for their tremendous support over the years.

THE MANAGER

RALPH GEORGE
(RALPH) HOUK #35

Age: 63, Turns 64 Aug. 9; Born: August 9, 1919, Lawrence, Kan. Ht. 5-11; Wt. 190 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Pompano Beach, Fla. Married Bette Porter. Children: Donna 11/22/41, Richard 2/28/43, Robert 8/24/49.

The Red Sox remained in the 1982 Eastern Div. race until the last week and finished third with an 89-73 record. Houk's successful handling of the bullpen was a prime reason the team was first or second Apr. 23 thru Sept. 3. The club responded to Houk's never-say-die attitude and came from behind to win 45 games, including 14 from the 7th inning on. In Dec. 1981 the Red Sox extended Houk's contract through 1984 at a substantial increase in salary.

On Oct. 27, 1980 Houk was named the 35th manager of the Red Sox, ending a two-year retirement. Ralph previously managed 16 years in the A.L. with the Yankees and Tigers. In addition to being a winning manager (1455-1371, .515) he is also credited with the ability to develop young players. Houk succeeded Casey Stengel as Yankee manager in 1961 and directed N.Y. to three straight pennants and two World Championships (1961-62). Those feats resulted in such honors as Major League Manager of the Year by The Sporting News in 1961 and managing the A.L. All Star team in 1962-63. He spent two years as Yankee Vice-Pres. and Gen. Manager before moving back as manager May 7, 1966 replacing Johnny Keane. He was named A.L. Manager of the Year in 1970.

Ralph left N.Y. after 1973 to become manager of the Tigers for the next five years. He announced his retirement after guiding the young Tigers to an 86-76 record in 1978 and spent the next two years in Pompano Beach. Houk is first in point of service as a manager in the major leagues.

Houk played in the Yankee organization as a catcher, 1939-54, with four years (1942-45) out for military duty with the Rangers of the 9th Armored Div. in Europe in WW II. He rose from private to major, saw action at Bastogne and The Bulge and was awarded the Silver Star, Purple Heart and Bronze Star.

THE COACHES

Age: 63, Turns 64 Sept. 27; Born: September 27, 1919, Portland, Ore. Ht. 5-9; Wt. 170 lbs. Brown eyes, Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Swampscott, Mass. Married Ruth Hickey. Children: David 12/19/52.

Johnny has been associated with the Red Sox for close to 40 years in almost every phase of the game, as a player, coach, manager, radio-TV announcer and advertising salesman. He's still one of the most popular members of the Red Sox and makes many off-season appearances on the banquet circuit. In Jan. 1982 the Boston Baseball Writers honored him with their "Good Guy" award. He was the first base coach for five years and then moved to a dugout role assisting the manager in 1980 while continuing to be the team's hitting instructor.

Johnny was an outstanding shortstop, third baseman and all-around hitter. He holds the Red Sox records for most hits by a rookie (205) and most singles in a season (172) and hit over 300 six times in his major league career. He was the first Red Sox player to have three 200-hit years (Jim Rice is the 2nd). After 10 years with Boston, Detroit and Washington, Pesky coached under Ralph Houk in Denver in 1955 and managed in the Detroit farm system from 1956 through 1960. In the mid-1960's he was a coach for the Pirates and a manager in their system before joining the Red Sox broadcast crew in 1969. He spent six years as part of the radio and television team. He also managed Seattle for the Red Sox in 1961-62 before moving up to the parent Boston team in 1963-64. He's tied for the M.L. record in leading a league in hits 3 straight years.

It's a Hit!

WALTER JOHN (WALT) HRINIAK #33

Age: 39, Turns 40 May 22; Born: May 22, 1943, Natick, Mass. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 178 lbs. Green eyes, Blond hair. Bats: Left, Throws: Right. Home: Natick, Mass.

This is Hriniak's seventh year with the Red Sox. In addition to his bullpen coaching duties he works on hitting techniques with several of the Sox and has won acclaim for his methods. He's recognized as one of the best batting practice pitchers in the game and is a keen student of overall strategy.

Before joining the Red Sox in 1977 Hriniak put in 16 years as a player, coach and minor league manager. He managed Montreal's rookie team at Lethbridge, Alb., Can. in the Pioneer League in 1976 after starting the year as a coach with Denver. In 1974-75 he was first base coach with the Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown team in the NYP League.

Hriniak signed a reported $50,000 contract with the Milwaukee Braves in 1961 after an outstanding career at Natick, Mass. H.S. He was an All Scholastic choice as a shortstop, football quarterback and hockey center. His 13-year pro playing career included two years with the Braves and Padres as a catcher in 1968-69.

EDWARD FRED JOSEPH (EDDIE) YOST #36

Age: 56; Born: October 13, 1926, Brooklyn, N.Y. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Wellesley, Mass. Married Pat Healy. Children: Felita 1/13/62, Michael 11/12/63, Alexis 5/3/65.

Eddie is regarded as one of the best third base coaches in baseball. Quick thinking and thorough knowledge of the opposition's strengths and weaknesses are necessary ingredients for a successful third base coach, and Yost has always demonstrated those attributes. Eddie is in his seventh year at that spot for the Red Sox after doing likewise for the Mets, 1968-76 and Washington Senators, 1963-67. He was with the Mets in the 1969 and 1973 World Series.

"The Walking Man," as he was known during his 17-year major league career, was an outstanding third baseman and leadoff hitter. Came from the campus of New York U. to the Senators in 1944. Led the A.L. 6 times in BB, had over 100 BB 8 times, scored over 100 runs 5 times and twice led the A.L. in fielding. Still holds the A.L. record of 28 HR as leadoff batter.

He was traded from Washington to Detroit in Dec. of 1958 and was selected by the Angels in baseball's first expansion draft, Dec. 14, 1960. When Yost retired after the 1962 season he held the major league record for most games at third base (2,008) and the A.L. marks for putouts (2,356), assists (3,659) and chances (6,015). He was selected for the A.L. All Star team in 1952 but did not play. He has a Master's Degree in Physical Education from N.Y.U. and is a member of their Hall of Fame. On Nov. 1, 1981 he was inducted into the Washington, D.C. Hall of Stars and his portrait was hung in D.C. Stadium.

ALBERT LEE (LEE, STINGER) STANGE #34

Age: 46; Born: October 27, 1936, Chicago, Ill. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 170 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Fountain Valley, Calif. Married June. Children: Tim 9/3/64, Jim 3/21/67, Jana 5/15/68, Jennifer 9/25/66, Christopher 11/1/67.

Stange was named pitching coach in Nov. 1980 after a six-year absence from the Red Sox major league staff. He rejoined the Sox in 1980 as a minor league pitching instructor on the Triple A and Double A levels and served as a West Coast scout.

"Stinger" ended a 10-year major league career in 1970 and was the Red Sox minor league pitching coach in 1971 before moving up to the club's major league staff in 1972-74. He held the same position with the Twins in 1975 and then joined the Oakland organization in 1976 as a minor league instructor. He was the A's pitching coach 1977-79.

Stange had a 62-61 major league record with the Twins, Indians, Red Sox and White Sox. He came to Boston 6/2/66 from the Indians with pitcher Don McMahon for Dick Radatz. He was 8-10 with a 2.77 ERA (best on the team) during the 1967 pennant-winning season and the Sox best reliever in 1968 with 5 wins and 11 saves in 50 games. On 6/29/70 he was sold to the White Sox. "Stinger" was All State in baseball and All Chicago in basketball at Proviso Township H.S. He was also a football QB and teammate of ex-NFL star Ray Nitschke, and went to Drake U. on a football scholarship. On 9/2/64 he tied the M.L. record of 4 strikeouts in one inning for Clev.

TOMMY (TOMMY) HARPER #32

Age: 42; Born: October 14, 1940, Oak-Grove, La. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 160 lbs. Brown eyes, Black hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Stoughton, Mass. Married Bonnie Jean Williams.

Harper is in his fourth year as the club's first base coach and base-running instructor. He spent the 1979 season in the Red Sox public relations office before joining the coaching staff. Tommy had a 15-year major league career with Cincinnati, Cleveland, the Seattle Pilots, Milwaukee, the Red Sox, California, Oakland and Baltimore and then was a scout and minor league coach for the Yankees.

He started his career with the Reds at the end of the 1962 season and finished with the Orioles in 1976. In 1810 games Harper hit .257 with 146 home runs and 408 stolen bases. In 1970 he hit 31 home runs and stole 38 bases for Milwaukee, a feat accomplished by Bobby Bonds, Willie Mays, Henry Aaron and Ken Williams. He hit 6 homers that year as leadoff batter, to tie for the A.L. record with Eddie Joost (1948), Eddie Yost (1959), Bert Campaneris (1970) and Brian Downing (1982). In 1965 he led the N.L. in runs (126) for the Reds and in 1969 he led the A.L. with 73 stolen bases for the Pilots. He played for the Red Sox in 1972-74 and was the team's MVP in 1973 when he led the A.L. with a club-record 54 SB's, scored 92 runs and hit 17 homers.

Harper starred in three sports at Encinal H.S. and Santa Rosa College and hit .507 at San Francisco State before signing with the Reds. He was the MVP of the Three-I League in 1961 and played 1B-2B-3B-OF in the majors.

In 1982 the RED SOX spelled relief M-A-R-K C-L-E-A-R

Joe Mooney and Ground Crew

Less than a week before opening day of the 1982 season, Fenway Park was buried under more than a foot of snow. The team, snowed out in Chicago, was back in Winter Haven, Fla.

In Boston, writers and radio-TV people were surveying the bleak scene at Fenway. Said one young TV expert, flatly, "There is no way they will be able to play baseball here on opening day." (April 12). A veteran hand replied, "You don't know Joe Mooney."

He is listed on the program as — Superintendent, Grounds and Maintenance — a job that carries a ton of weight in a ballpark, and a tremendous amount of work and responsibility. If you want anything done around Fenway, the word is — "See Mooney."

This is the guy, who, last April, worked his gangs around the clock to get the snow off the ballpark and adjacent walks — not to mention getting it off the seats and ramps.

Joe slept in his office for forty winks here and there and then it was back out to boss the shovelers, hose men, truck drivers and end-loader operators. Asked in the middle of all this if he could do it, he said, positively, "We'll play."

Monday, April 12, at 2:05 p.m., Boston opened its 1982 home season against the Chicago White Sox — on time and without a trace of snow to be seen. Mooney had struck again.

There is no other way to describe the silver-haired 50-year-old except "burly." He can be a gruff Irishman, but he's fair. A man of the soil, really, Joe was once assessed by one of his former workers thusly, "We don't have any of that funny-suit stuff when we do the infield after the fifth inning. He wants us to fit right in with the dirt. We wear brown."

Joe began as a 10-year-old working for the Scranton Red Sox of the Old Eastern League. He came up the hard way, from Scranton to Louisville to San Francisco to Minnesota to Washington

(10 years), and finally to Boston in 1970.

Ralph Houk, Red Sox manager, recalls, "I remember when I was at Denver and we would go to play Louisville. That was the best-kept ballpark I'd ever seen."

One of the charms of Fenway Park is the grass, ever green, ever beautiful. Many a suburban householder with a small lawn goes green himself with envy at the sight of Mooney's sod. The field is approximately two acres, but it gets more scrutiny than any lawn in the country.

Joe Mooney

"It's Merion Blue Grass, the same grass that's on the fairways of many golf clubs," says Joe. "Our big problem with keeping grass in New England is fungus. This has been a tough year for fungus, with the temperatures going from one extreme to the other. The tough thing is to have rain with hot weather coming in behind it."

"We cut the grass every day there is a game in the growing season, which is May through September, and every two days when the team is on the road."

The field gets groomed after the season is over, and again before opening day. Says Joe, "We do all the hard work in October and November. But getting the park ready to open in April means we have to go like hell every good day we get, or we're in trouble."

The respect with which Mooney is held in his profession and in baseball is pointed up by an anecdote from the rain-beset World Series of 1975. The Sixth Game of the Series between the Reds and the Red Sox had been called off twice due to rain and everyone was getting itchy, players included.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn had been taking a lot of flak from all sides about playing the game.

After the game had been postponed for the third time, Kuhn said, "I had asked Joe Mooney well in advance what would happen. He told me on Saturday that there was no way that the field would be ready for a Monday night game. However, the chances were better that we could play at night than in the afternoon. I never once asked a television executive what to do. I did not talk to anyone outside of Joe Mooney. He was the man I trusted."

THE STANLEY STEAMER...

By Joe Gordon

Bob Stanley says he shouldn't be compared to some of the great names in modern-day relief pitching. He's probably right. What Stanley does for the Red Sox is incomparable.

"I'm not a Rollie Fingers or a Goose Gossage," Stanley insists. "I don't consider myself a great reliever. I don't like to think of myself that way. I'm a low-key individual."

Indeed, it takes a low-key individual to do what Stanley does. He has single-handedly lent credibility to the art of middle relief. He has taken a role in Ralph Houk's bull pen that demands self-sacrifice. He is the guy Houk depends on to put out the early fires, hold the short leads, keep the Red Sox alive, and, at times, finish.

It's the kind of role that brings premature grayness, if not universal acclaim. There are too many times when a middle reliever who has done his job properly is forgotten. The man he hands the ball to will get the save, and, human nature being what it is, the pitcher who strikes out the final batter gets the raves. All the middle man has done is make it possible.

What Stanley has brought to his craft has been such a high degree of efficiency that he has accumulated the kind of won-lost record that has forced baseball people to acknowledge his tremendous value. He has combined uncanny durability with the efficiency. Last season, when he was 12-7 with 14 saves, he set a new American League record for innings pitched by a reliever, 168.1. He also had the second best ERA in the league, his 3.10 figure behind only Cleveland's Rick Sutcliffe's 2.96.

That, of course, is history. But something Stanley learned last season can make him an even better pitcher as the Sox embark on the new campaign with a pitching setup into which Stanley must figure just as much as in 1982.

"Last year I learned how to handle myself in games where I got to the mound too pumped up," said the man they call "Steamer". "That is dangerous for a sinker-ball pitcher, because with too much on the ball it doesn't sink. I have learned how to stay within myself even on those days."

"I also learned something at the start of last season," he added. "I was trying so hard to get it going that I started gripping the ball too tightly without even realizing it. It wasn't until 'Taco' (Mike Torrez) told me about it that I started relaxing the grip, and the ball started moving right away."

THE STANLEY STEAMER...

Entering 1983, Stanley ranked ninth all-time amongst Red Sox pitchers with 268 appearances and a .617 winning percentage (71-44). Yet because of the maturity and experience of learning how to adjust to his body on a given day, he can be even better. But how long can a man be asked to come out of the pen 168 innings in a season and still be effective?

"That doesn't worry me at all," Stanley assured. "The way Ralph uses his relievers he'd rather lose a game on a certain night than risk using a tired pitcher who might hurt himself. I was tired only one time that I can remember all last season. I love to get the ball, and I can't ever see me telling him I was too tired anyway. I almost always know the nights I'm going to have a chance of being used, and I can get ready."

One of the beneficial aspects of a sinker-ball pitcher getting a steady diet of work is that the ball tends to move sharper when the edge is slightly off the velocity, so the combination of Houk's judicious use of Stanley to keep him from being simply overworked and in danger of arm problems, and Stanley's tough sinker has become essential to the Sox chances in the A.L. East.

When necessary, Stanley can be called upon to adapt to a Gossage or Fingers type of short role. His versatility, however, allowed him to go as long as 8.1 innings last May against Oakland, allowing just three hits and a single run. He went four or more innings 18 times, with the Red Sox winning 14 of those games while he himself was 9-1 with three saves in those appearances.

Stanley spent just three seasons in the minors, skipping over Triple A ball after a 15-9 season in 1976 at Bristol in Double A. He was a starter until he got to Boston, where it was deemed he would be more effective as a reliever.

"Back then I don't think I had enough pitches to be a starter," said Stanley. "I might be more effective starting now because I've added a pitch or two (he developed a palm ball last season), but I'm happy doing just what I'm doing now. The only things I'd like to do differently are get off to a faster start than I have the last two seasons, and beat Chicago, or get a save against them."

It was an unfortunate pitch Stanley threw to Tom Paciorek early last season, resulting in a game-winning home run, that set Steamer back a week, but during that period he discovered his grip problem. It's difficult for a middle reliever to lay out specific goals for a season in terms of stats. But in terms of a career, Stanley's goal is this: "I don't want to be known as an average pitcher. I don't want to be forgotten."

No one enjoyed the Red Sox first Old Timers' Game last May 1 more than Gary Geiger.

The Boston outfielder during the first half of the 1960's was continually bubbling over with enthusiasm while meeting his old teammates and recalling their days together.

The reunion was made especially memorable as Geiger delivered the hit that gave his team the win in the abbreviated contest that lured a capacity crowd to Fenway Park.

“It was a big thrill, especially since my boy came along.” His son, Gary Wayne Geiger, could follow in his father's footsteps.

Young Geiger is a senior at a Tulsa, OKLA. high school and is a pitcher-third baseman-outfielder.

“He's a highly regarded prospect, and I think he will be drafted. But college is also a possibility.”

THEN: Geiger, a native of Sand Ridge, Ill., signed with the St. Louis Cardinals organization after graduating from high school. He began his professional career as a pitcher, but after three years was converted into an outfielder.

“I had been used as a pinch-hitter. When I was with Rochester (International League), Dixie Walker, my manager, decided to change me.”

If the designated hitter rule had been in effect at that time, his hitting ability might never have been recognized.

Frank Lane was general manager of the Cardinals when Geiger was signed. When the famed wheeler and dealer was fired by St. Louis and moved to Cleveland, one of his first moves was to draft Gary.

NEWCOMERS ADD STRENGTH TO THE LINE UP

They realized their priorities before the season had even ended. The first and most obvious need the Red Sox had was a stopper as a starting pitcher, a Carlton or a Valenzuela or a Stieb. Their second need was a righthanded power hitter who could bat cleanup behind Jim Rice, their third a role player who could fit the bill as a third catcher and part-time designated hitter.

By the time Haywood Sullivan, Ed Kenney, Ralph Houk and the rest of the Red Sox officialdom had reached Honolulu for the winter meetings, it was obvious that there was no way they could make a trade for a frontline starter. The winningest starter traded at the meetings, in fact, was Doug Bird, whom the Red Sox acquired from the Cubs for Chuck Rainey.

So, as the Oakland Athletics made it clear that they wanted Carney Lansford badly, and they also couldn't come up with the type of pitcher Houk needed, Sullivan dropped a suggestion to A's executive Bill Rigney. "How about Tony Armas for Lansford?"

"No way," replied Rigney. "We're not breaking up the strength of our ballclub."

The next morning, Rigney called Sullivan back. "We've changed our minds," Rigney said. "We'll do Armas for Lansford."

So Sullivan hung up the phone and called Houk. "How would you like Armas?"

"You've got to be kidding," Houk answered. "He's exactly what we need."

And within an hour, the biggest trade of the meetings was made: Lansford, Garry Hancock and Jerome King for Armas and catcher Jeff Newman.

Later, they would acquire Bird from the Cubs and Brian Kingman from Oakland in separate deals to try to shore up their pitching — but with one suggestion and one trade the Red Sox had filled two of their three major trade priorities. "With one move," observed White Sox manager Tony LaRussa, "they went back to scaring people in Fenway Park again."

Not to dwell on the past, but as the 1982 season wore on, the Red Sox found themselves being increasingly burned by opponents' lefthanded pitchers. "When the Twins and Royals came into Fenway and threw six straight lefthanders at us last July," said Houk, "we knew we had problems."

"In Fenway, you've got to scare people," explained Twins manager Billy Gardner, "and they didn't scare people the way they used to. But now, with Armas and Newman, you're not going

A TRIBUTE TO TONY C

By George Sullivan

He lived the dream of every young Red Sox fan.

Less than two years out of high school, there he was at age 19—the hometown boy wearing a Red Sox uniform and striding to the plate at Fenway Park on Opening Day 1964. And on the first pitch served him, he arched a home run high over the screen above the left-field wall to launch the Red Sox to victory.

As Fenway rocked in response to the storybook homer, among those cheering were his mother and father, two brothers, a chorus of friends and neighbors, and a galaxy of celebrities including Stan Musial, Gene Tunney, Fredric March, Carol Channing, and Bobby and Ted Kennedy, along with the governor and mayor.

And the dream was just beginning. The cocky teenager would rip 23 more home runs that season (while batting .290) despite missing six weeks with an assortment of injuries including two broken bones. And the next season, despite a hairline wrist fracture that sidelined him 24 games, the six-foot-three, 185-pound righthanded slugger would hit 32 homers to lead the American League—at 20, the youngest ever to top the majors. By age 22 he would slam 100 home runs, the youngest big leaguer ever to do so.

Through it all he became a household name around the country. He made records off the field as well as on, gave concerts and sang on national television. He entertained the troops in Vietnam. A handsome bachelor, gossip columnists linked his name with those of glamour queens.

Then, in less than four seasons, it all came crashing to a halt. While helping the Red Sox toward an Impossible Dream pennant, he nearly was killed by a pitch at Fenway one August night in 1967—carried off the field in intense pain and rushed to a hospital with a shattered cheekbone, dislocated jaw and a damaged retina which seriously impaired his vision.

"Death was constantly on my mind," he would recall. "I thought I was going to die."

He didn't die, but was told by doctors that he'd never play baseball again. He tried the next season anyway but failed. So the fall after that he attempted a comeback as a pitcher, and during that time in the Florida Instructional League his sight improved and he made it back instead at his old position in right field.

He celebrated his return to the Red Sox with a dramatic home run in the 10th inning of the 1969 season opener at Baltimore and scored the winning run in the 12th inning. And among those congratulating him was a new roommate, his brother Billy, a fellow outfielder seeing his first game as a big leaguer.

The returning hero would hit 20 homers, drive in 82 runs and play in 141 games that Comeback of the Year season to win the Hutch Award, given annually to the major leaguer who "best exemplifies the fighting spirit and burning desire of the late Freddy Hutchinson," the former Detroit star pitcher and Tigers, Reds and Cardinals manager.

And he would go on to an even better season in 1970, reaching career highs of 36 homers and 116 RBIs.

But more bad luck would dog him. Eye specialists had regarded his comeback as a near miracle, but the miracle wasn't complete. He had recurring eye problems after being traded to California and he retired after only half a season with the Angels. He tried another comeback with the 1975 Red Sox, but after 21 games quit for keeps to become a sportscaster—after 162 home runs in 802 games in a Boston uniform.

And bad luck continued to haunt Tony Conigliaro in January 1982—this time a tragedy—as he fell critically ill while driving to Logan Airport.

The dream now had turned into a nightmare.

Yet Tony C's story will always be a classic—the ultimate Red Sox dream come true.

Conigliaro makes a spectacular tumbling catch in 1967.

The well-remembered Conigliaro swing.

George Sullivan covered Tony C's exploits through the 1960s as a Boston sportswriter, and was on the scene the night Conigliaro was beamed in August 1967. He also was the only writer accompanying Tony to the Florida Instructional League in Fall 1968 when Conig attempted his comeback as a pitcher.

The author of four books including The Picture History of the Boston Red Sox, Sullivan joined the Red Sox in late 1981 as public relations director.

Conigliaro welcomed another slugger named Hank Aaron to Fenway Park in 1975.

Hall of Famer Ted Williams tutored young Tony during spring training.

Tony was nearly killed at Fenway in August 1967, when a pitch shattered Conig's cheekbone, dislocated his jaw and damaged a retina. Told he'd never play baseball again, Conigliaro would make a dramatic comeback in 1969, winning back his right field job after a year and a half on the sidelines.

Tony made records off the field as well as on, gave concerts and sang on national television.

Break tradition.

Drink Ronrico Rum instead.

Face it, you already know what your usual gin and vodka have to offer.

Just try one drink mixed with Ronrico, and you'll realize what it is you've been missing all along.

Ronrico is superbly smooth and light. With a surprisingly distinctive flavor that's bound to win you over.

Isn't it about time you broke tradition with Ronrico Rum?

The Red Sox had a pair of hard-hitting rookie Tonys in 1964—outfielder-first baseman Tony H (for Horton) joining Tony C at the Red Sox' spring training base at Scottsdale, Ariz.

Conigliaro met another headliner named Willie Mays at the 1967 All-Star Game in Anaheim. Both had been baseball prodigies, winning outfield jobs as hard-hitting youngsters—Conig at age 19, Mays at 20.

Conig reached the 100-homer plateau by age 22, the youngest in major league history. In all, during six and a fraction Boston seasons, Tony slammed 162 homers—tied with Carlton Fisk for ninth place on the all-time Red Sox list.

Baseball Shorthand, as used by the news media to render every game more enjoyable to baseball enthusiasts. All players are numbered and all plays recorded by symbols. For symbols and example of system, see below.

CODE NUMBER OF PLAYERS AS FOLLOWS

|---------------|---|----------------|---|----------------|---|
| Pitcher | 1 | Second Baseman | 4 | Left Fielder | 7 |
| Catcher | 2 | Third Baseman | 5 | Center Fielder | 8 |
| First Baseman | 3 | Shortstop | 6 | Right Fielder | 9 |

SYMBOLS FOR PLAYS

|-----------------------|----|------------------|-----|---------------|----|
| Single | — | Fielder's Choice | FC | Passed Ball | PB |
| Double | = | Hit by Pitcher | HP | Balk | BK |
| Triple | ≡ | Wild Pitch | WP | Struck Out | K |
| Home Run | ≡≡ | Stolen Base | SB | Base on Balls | BB |
| Reached base on error | E | Sacrifice | SAC | Force Out | FO |

The lower lefthand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower righthand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper lefthand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

As they always say, "In the big leagues it's the team with the most talent on the bench that's going to win it all."

"Bench strength . . . that's why the winners sign Aardvark, the most productive pinch hitter in the league."

Resourceful managers (executives) have counted on Aardvark for assistance during peak work load periods, unexpected personnel shortages, and project start-up. Aardvark has responded by providing reliable cost efficient software services.

Whether you need help for a few weeks, months, or even longer, consider Aardvark Systems And Programming the best pinch hitter you can find. Call them now at (617) 367-8081.

More than 83,000 ballots were cast last summer as Red Sox fans selected their all-time Red Sox "Dream Team."

Hall of Famer Ted Williams was a landslide selection as the club's greatest player and was also named to the all-time outfield along with current stars Carl Yastrzemski and Dwight Evans.

The Red Sox and the Gillette Co. co-sponsored the election after a panel of sports reporters and broadcasters put together the list of players and managers that appeared on the ballot.

In January the all-time team was honored at the Boston Baseball Writers Dinner with seven of the living members in attendance.

Ted Williams, voted The Greatest All-Time Red Sox player, was on hand for the formal announcement of the "Dream Team" at Fenway Park in January.

BOSTON RED SOX AFFIRMATIVE ACTION POLICY

The Red Sox will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, religion, color, sex, age, national origin or ancestry. The Red Sox will take affirmative action to insure that such individuals are treated during their employment without regard to race, religion, color, sex, age, national origin or ancestry. Such action shall include but not be limited to the following: hiring, upgrading, demotion, transfer, recruitment, layoff, rates of pay, all other forms of compensation, and selection for training.

Personnel procedures and practices with regard to training, promotion, transfer, compensation, demotion, layoff or termination are to be administered with due regard to job performance, experience and qualifications, but without discrimination because of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin or ancestry.

It is the policy of the Red Sox that in the process of recruitment for and appointment to the work force qualified minority group candidates will be encouraged to apply.

The Red Sox will not discriminate against any rehabilitated employee or applicant because of previous psychiatric treatment and/or confinement in a mental health facility. Employment will not be denied for such medical history unless there is a bona fide occupational qualification which precludes employment. Additionally, the Red Sox will not discriminate against any rehabilitated employee or applicant for employment because of physical handicap unless there is a bona fide occupational qualification which precludes employment.

The Red Sox will not discriminate against qualified minority-owned vendors and suppliers, including suppliers of both professional and non-professional services. The Red Sox will request that its vendors and suppliers submit assurance of their commitments to the goal of equal employment opportunity. The Red Sox will not discriminate in the leasing of commercial space.

Any Red Sox employee judged to be in willful and deliberate non-compliance with this equal employment opportunity policy will be subject to disciplinary action.

YOU DON'T RUN MILLION-DOLLAR EXPERIMENTS WITH A CHEAPLY MADE
OIL FILTER.

What existing oil filter could be selected for automobiles of such valuable technological stature?

Incredibly, many million-dollar experiments are guarded by a Motorcraft FL-1A filter — right off the shelf. Engineered to outperform all leading filters, the FL-1A's unique six-slot base accommodates oil flow rushes to nine gallons per minute. And an exclusive filter design incorporating a pleated filter element is blended with tough man-made fiber. A superior material not found in cheaply made oil filters. The result? Motorcraft FL-1A lasts longer and traps more abrasives than any other leading filter. So which would appear the better choice to protect your car? The Motorcraft filter proven in million-dollar experiments? Or one proven to trap less dirt for a shorter period of time? Motorcraft. Quality parts for all makes of cars. Get it together — buckle up.

It's a new network and a new team on the Red Sox radio network this year. The Campbell Sports Network is bringing the action during the entire 1983 season to fans all over New England. WPLM in Plymouth is the flagship station and WHDH in Boston is the major metropolitan outlet.

Once again genial Ken Coleman is behind the mike, but he has a new partner in Joe Castiglione. Coleman, also the executive director of the Jimmy Fund, has done Red Sox games on radio and TV for 13 years, and has over 30 years of broadcasting experience.

Ken spent 10 years with the Cleveland Indians and 14 with the Cleveland Browns of the NFL. He also did Cincinnati Reds TV, Harvard and Ohio State football and seven NFL championship games. Ken won 12 AFTRA awards.

Castiglione, a native of Hamden, Conn., did play-by-play of Cleveland Indians games on cable TV last year after a similar position for the Milwaukee Brewers in 1981. He got his major league start by doing the Indians games on commercial TV in 1979 before he became the club's backup announcer on the radio network in 1980.

The Colgate U. graduate did college broadcasting at Colgate, Syracuse U. and Youngstown State U. Last year his cable TV partner in Cleveland was Hall of Fame pitcher Bob Feller.

Bob Montgomery

The popular combination of veteran Ned Martin and former catcher Bob Montgomery is together for the second year on the TV 38 (WSBK) Red Sox Network.

They will be announcing telecasts of approximately 100 games during TV 38's ninth straight year with the Red Sox. Five other stations around New England comprise the network.

Martin has been a New England fixture with Red Sox fans for 23 years, on both radio and TV. The Duke University grad and Marine Corps veteran has been with TV 38 since 1979. After starting his career working minor league games, Ned joined Curt Gowdy on the Red Sox network in 1961.

He has broadcast the American League Championship Series games on the CBS Radio network in 1976-78 and in the fall of 1979 went to Japan to telecast games between the Major League All Stars and Japanese teams.

Monty hit the only home run in last year's Old Timers Game at Fenway Park. He was also a part of the telecast team for the first time. In 1962 Bob signed with the Red Sox and was a catcher in the organization until he retired in the spring of 1980.

He came to the majors for good in 1971 and was a valuable reserve. The Boston Baseball Writers voted him their "Unsung Hero Award" in 1973 and he was on the 1975 pennant-winning club. Monty did a radio sports talk show in 1980-81 as well as some announcing and color commentary of Red Sox games on radio.

to see too many lefthanders start in Fenway this season."

The thing that makes the Armas deal such a good one for the Red Sox is that it gives them the cleanup hitter in a middle of the field, skill position, center field. That enables Wade Boggs and Dave Stapleton, both fine hitters but noted for average rather than power, to take their places at third and first base, respectively.

Armas, meanwhile, takes his place between Dwight Evans and Rice. "Tony goes from the best outfield in baseball to the best outfield in baseball," said Oakland President Roy Eisenhardt.

"Armas will hit a ton in that park," said LaRussa. That is good news to Rice, who has had to bear the frustrations of constantly being pitched around since Fred Lynn left town after the 1980 season.

Since becoming a regular in Oakland in 1980, Armas has hit 85 homers in three seasons (one shortened by the strike), the sixth highest total in the American League.

In 1980, he hit 35 and knocked in 109 runs. In 1981, he tied Evans and two others for the league lead with 22. Last year, despite playing three months with a bad hamstring pull, he hit 28. All of that was done in spacious Oakland Coliseum, where it is tough to hit the ball out in left-center. Since 27 of his 28 homers in 1982 were hit to the left of center field, the reasons for the concern by managers like Gardner and LaRussa are understandable.

"I'm not going to let The Wall change me," says Armas. "I'm sure there have been guys who came to that park, tried to hit everything into the net and got all messed up. I'm just going to hit the way I've always hit, but since I've always hit the ball to center, left-center and left and the ball carries so well there in Fenway, it should be a good park for me."

Armas also promises that he's never going to change his aggressive, hacking style. "I don't get cheated too often, laughs the 29-year old Venezuelan. His 127 career walks are only 15 more than Evans had last season.

Doug Bird

"What makes Armas such a dangerous hitter doesn't show up in the stats," says Newman. "When the game's on the line, there's not one hitter in the American League I'd rather have at the plate than Tony. He's a tough, tough man and a tough, tough competitor who burns to win. There are few players like him."

The Red Sox had some knowledge of Armas's toughness before they made the trade. Dr. Arthur Pappas, their team physician, had examined Armas's pulled hamstring last June and last August. He told Sullivan, "There are two guys I examined this past summer who are so tough they have almost a complete tolerance for pain — Willie Wilson of Kansas City and Armas."

Eisenhardt warned Houk, "One thing you have to watch out for is his getting hurt and not telling people. He'll dodge around the truth to trainers and doctors because he always wants to be in the lineup."

Eisenhardt fondly also remembers that the A's had to pad their outfield fences because Armas kept running into them. "He's a man with absolutely no fear."

Even though he played right field in Oakland, there is no concern about his ability to play center — except possibly running into the center field wall or the bullpen fence. "I always was a center fielder," Armas says, "I really prefer to play there, and moving back is no problem whatsoever."

Howie Haak, the great Pittsburgh scout who signed him in 1971, maintains that Armas "is an outstanding defensive center fielder." Red Sox pitching coach Lee Stange was coaching in Oakland when Armas, Dwayne Murphy and Rickey Henderson were first put together.

"Tony was really the best center fielder of the three," Stange remembers.

Red Sox Cooperate with Fenway Neighbors

The Red Sox reaffirm their commitment to cooperating with their neighbors in working out various community concerns. We encourage all of our fans to cooperate also by not littering, vandalizing or in any way disregarding the rights of the neighbors who surround Fenway Park. The Red Sox also urge all fans to use the parking lots in the vicinity of the stadium and to use private buses or public transportation whenever possible.

Please refer to the transportation map on Page 50 for further information on easy access to the ball park. Thank you.

Gillette to sponsor voting for 50th Anniversary All-Star Game

Can you name an All-Star participant for the last 13 years who has never worn a major league uniform, who has never heard the crowd roar for his lunging catch or clutch home run?

No? Here's a hint: this All-Star has been involved with baseball since 1910 and now conducts the election which determines the starting lineups in each year's All-Star Game.

Still stumped? Well, the answer is the Gillette Company, whose Safety Razor Division has sponsored the All-Star balloting since it was returned to the fans in 1970. Again this year, as the All-Star Game celebrates its 50th anniversary by returning to Chicago's Comiskey Park, Gillette will conduct the nationwide, computerized election.

Fans will use punch-out ballot cards with names of 144 major league stars, 72 from each league, to select the starting lineups for the July 6 mid-summer classic. American and National League offices, in consultation with the All-Star managers, select the pitchers and reserves. There will also be spaces to write in players not listed. Players on the ballot are selected by a special committee of sportswriters, sportscasters, veteran players, general managers, managers and major league public relations directors.

All-Star ballots will be available free at thousands of stores featuring a Gillette All-Star display and at major and minor league ballparks. The balloting period runs from May 20 to June 26.

As an added bonus to fans who vote for the All-Stars, attached to each ballot is a refund certificate redeemable for 50 percent off four popular Gillette products. (The four products are: Atra cartridge 5's, Trac II cartridge 9's, the Atra razor and the Cricket disposable lighter).

Gillette's All-Star Election is another facet in the long history of Gillette's association with baseball. It began in 1939 with Gillette's first sponsorship of

"Where Are They Now?"

Geiger spent his first major league season, 1958, with the Indians, batting .231 in 91 games.

After that year, Geiger came to Boston in a trade for first baseman Vic Wertz and was with the Red Sox from 1959 through 1965.

Although his statistics were hardly awesome — his highest average was .302 in 77 games in 1960 — Geiger earned the respect of the New England baseball fans for the hustle and flair he exhibited while playing for mediocre teams.

Unfortunately, his days in Boston were injury plagued.

"Everything happened. I had a broken hand, my right lung collapsed (the result of being hit on the back by a pitch) and I had an ulcer operation."

Geiger moved on to Atlanta for the 1966 and 1967 seasons, then was released. Ironically, his next stop was with his first organization, St. Louis. The Cardinals made him a player-coach at Tulsa.

Houston drafted Geiger after the 1968 season and Gary spent the next two years with the Astros. The 1970 campaign was his last in the majors. Overall he had a .246 batting average with 77 homers and 283 runs batted in while playing in 954 games during his 12-year career.

Geiger managed Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for St. Louis in 1972, Greenwood, S.C., for Atlanta in 1973, "sat out a year," then served as minor league instructor for Detroit in 1975.

NOW: Geiger, who celebrated his 46th birthday April 4, has lived in Tulsa the last 13 years. He is the building superintendent of a private school.

"My fondest memories of Boston are the nice people I met in my seven years there. It was great playing with people like Ted (Williams) and Jackie (Jensen) and Frank (Malzone). I also remember Mr. Yawkey with a great deal of affection.

"My greatest thrill had to be an inside-the-park grand-slam homer against Minnesota in the early 1960's. I hit the ball to right field against Camilo Pascual. Bob Allison, who was playing there that day, dove for it. It went by him and rolled around the base of the fence. I had to slide for the plate and just beat the throw in a close play.

"That put us ahead, 4-0, but I believe we lost the game, 5-4 or 6-4. The Red Sox had pitching problems in those days, too.

"It was just a big thrill to play in Boston."

Red Sox fans enjoyed watching the lean player, both during his active days in Boston, and on his return to Fenway Park last May 1.

The late Wells Twombly wrote at the time, "Indeed, Mooney is the man who has the whole wonderful world of sports groveling at his toenails, reaching up to kiss his kneecap. He is a prosaic person, strictly a man of the earth . . . He gives an honest answer."

While it has been maintained at various times that Joe has a pipeline to the sky in his predictions on whether it will rain or not, and if so, how much and when, actually there is teamwork that tells the story.

Mooney and Joe McDermott, executive assistant to Haywood Sullivan and Buddy LeRoux, Sox executive vice presidents, maintain a close vigil with Weather Service Corp. of Bedford, Mass., when weather threatens. Storms are tracked entering the area and their intensity and duration are phoned to Fenway.

The decision to play or not, before the game starts and is handed over to the umpires, is made by Sullivan. Once the game starts and if rain should come it is Mooney and his ground crew that get the workout with the huge tarpaulin that covers the infield.

Says Joe, "The tarp weighs one ton when it is dry, and it takes one minute and 20 seconds to get it down. Our young kids really go when we are trying to beat the rain. When the tarp is wet it takes 16 men to move it, and that really is a workout."

The ground crew consists of 10-12 men, basically, who work year round at the park. There are veterans like Freddie Leathers, over 40 years at Fenway, and Al Forrester, the man who drives the golf cart, and formerly ferried in the pitchers from the bullpen.

Then there are Mike Sheehan, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, Jim McCarthy, John McGonigle, Chris O'Brien, Billy Powers, Jim Gately, Warner Jackson and John Sullivan. Each has specific areas of concern. There is never a lazy day at Fenway.

Also in Mooney's domain is the maintenance of the building itself, from the seats where the fans watch, to the front offices, the roofs and the towers. There are light bulbs to replace, seats to paint, aisles to hose, laundry to do, sidewalks to sweep and balls to be retrieved from the screen. And, it is one of Mooney's lad's who mans the hand-set scoreboard in left field.

A major job is the re-sodding of the field, but that is done rarely, except for certain areas. Mooney says, "We do a major re-sodding only once in nine or 10 years. Unless, of course, we get some major emergency. We seed and plug and we re-sod the pitcher's mound and around home plate. Jim McCarthy takes care of that."

And so, rain or shine, snow, or God forbid, hail, Mooney and his brown-clad crew roam all over the real estate. Nothing much happens around the ballpark that doesn't affect Mooney's job.

"Yeah," he says, "I've done my share of traveling. But, the Red Sox have treated me good. Baseball's been good to me. It's a great life."

Once in a while, you'll get that sly grin from Joe, when, like the modest leprechaun that he is, he protests that he really doesn't have a pipeline to the great god of weather.

Rhapsodies have been written about the charm and greenery of Fenway Park. It's Mooney's job to keep 'em writing like that.

There are plenty of sporty cars that will turn heads today. But there aren't many that will turn corners like a Toyota Celica GT. Because Celica has more than just an eye-catching exterior. It has the right stuff underneath, too.

The 1983 Celica GT Liftback has the most powerful engine ever offered in a Celica, a 24 liter power plant with a new electronic fuel injection system. From now on, heads better turn quickly, or they won't see Celica at all.

Celicas also come standard with a close ratio 5-speed overdrive transmission. And a 4-speed automatic overdrive is available.

There's even a new Celica model for 1983 — the Celica GT-S (pictured below). It introduces racing-type independent rear suspension to the Celica line. Celica GT-S also comes standard with the biggest tires in the class — extra-wide 225/60 HR 14 steel-belted radials. And they're mounted on gleaming 14" x 7" aluminum alloy wheels. So Celica turns corners with a precision the rest of the

the World Series. The success of its World Series broadcasts led Gillette to sponsor the first All-Star night game in 1943.

The All-Star Game was the brain-child of Arch Ward, famed Chicago Tribune sportswriter. The year was 1933, the midst of the great Depression, and Chicago was celebrating its centennial with an exposition called A Century of Progress. Previous expositions in other cities were financial disasters, but the Chicago event combined brilliant scientific, technological and architectural exhibits with marketing savvy to produce a fair that was so successful it saved many Chicago businesses from bankruptcy. And, part of the successful marketing mix was the first All-Star Game.

Ward had wanted for many years to bring together the best players from the National League to meet the best American League players in a one-time "dream game." By tying it to the Century of Progress exposition, Ward was able to sell the idea to Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

Selling it to the baseball team owners,

George Scott

Fred Lynn

Carl Yastrzemski

Over an eight year span (1973 thru 1980) the American League players hit five All Star Game homers and they were all by Red Sox players — Yaz in 1975, Fred Lynn in 1976, 79 & 80 and George Scott in 1977.

however, was a harder task. Why should they interrupt the pennant races for three days to let their stars participate in a "meaningless" game? Landis prevailed on the owners to allow it for one year.

The game was a huge success, drawing 49,200 fans to Chicago's Comiskey Park. They saw the immortal Babe Ruth hit a home run to lead his fellow American League stars to a 4-2 win.

The owners agreed to a second game the next year. The game was in New York and when Carl Hubbell, the left-handed ace from the Giants, struck out hitting stars Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmie Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin in succession, the game captured the nation's attention and it became an annual mid-summer highlight.

This year major league baseball celebrates the Golden Anniversary of Arch Ward's dream game. It is only right that the 50th anniversary game be played at Comiskey Park, and Gillette is proud to be a continuing part of the game.

The Gillette All-Star Election has evolved into the largest nonpolitical election in the United States. Last year's top vote getter, Montreal's Gary Carter, received 2,785,407 votes to edge Mike Schmidt's 2,748,210. Carter's total would have been enough to elect him governor of many states, or mayor of Toronto or Montreal!

"But because he was the best all-around outfielder and had the best arm, we put him in right field, the toughest of the three positions."

In case you've never seen Armas's arm, it is one of the best in the game, and he, Evans and Rice should comprise the best throwing outfield in either league.

"When you start to make teams go from base to base in Fenway," says Houk, "you cut off a lot of runs over the course of the season."

While Armas was the key man in the deal from Boston's standpoint, Newman could turn out to be very valuable. The 34-year old Fort Worth native had slumped to .231 and .199 the last two seasons, but feels this is a fresh start for him.

"I think the change will do me good for a number of reasons," said Newman. "The ballpark should be good for me, I have tremendous respect for Houk, I've looked forward to working with Walter Hriniaik and I think this is a positive situation."

Houk had wanted Newman for three years, both for his bat and his catching ability. "He's always been a good handler of pitchers," said Kingman. "In fact, a few of the Oakland pitchers used to request that he catch when they pitched. Of course, that didn't mean that Billy (Martin) would go along with them."

Newman had been subjected to some criticism for his throwing in Oakland, but the stolen base record against the A's was as much to do with the pitchers — their ability to hold runners on and stay ahead in the count — as it was any catcher.

"I'll admit I got myself into some bad habits at the plate," says Newman. "But with Walter, hopefully I can go back to where I was in 1979 and '80 (when he hit 22 and 15 homers and made the All Star team). One thing that will help me is that I'm a lowball hitter."

And, in Fenway, not too many opposing pitchers come in trying to do anything but keep the ball down.

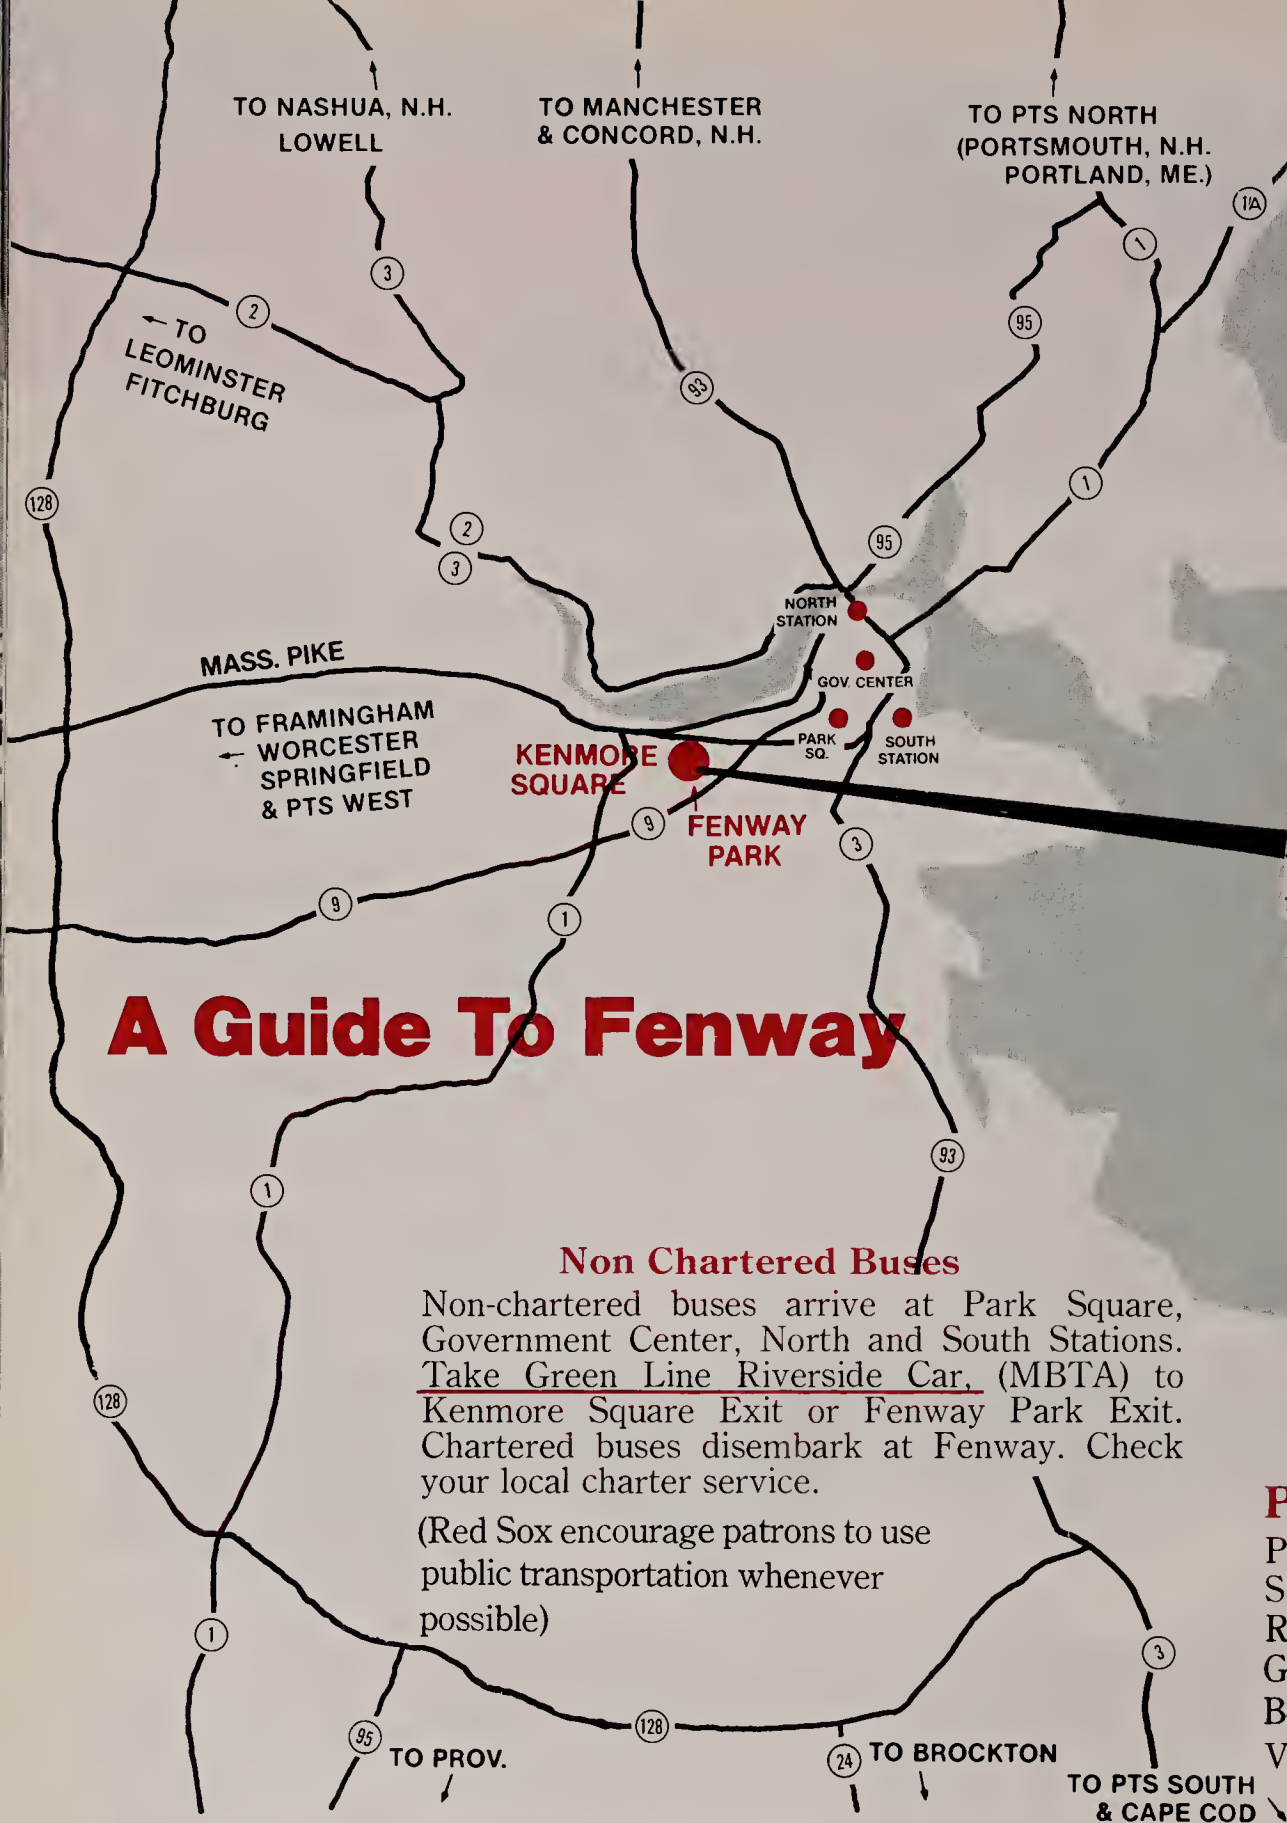

"With Newman available to catch, play first and DH, we've got flexibility we haven't had since I've been here," Houk maintains.

Get the Atra advantage.

The Gillette Atra® razor has the advantage of a pivoting head. So it shaves better than twin blade razors that don't pivot. The pivoting head keeps both blades on your beard longer, so you get a closer, more comfortable shave. And when you get a closer, more comfortable shave, you can get a lot more advantages.
